LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Charney Bassett is governed by a three-tier council system, parish, district and county.

Parish Council

The Parish Council is responsible for local matters within the confines of the village and should be the first port of call for villagers requiring advice or action on village issues. It maintains the village environment either by paying for such things as grass cutting and street cleaning or by calling upon the services of the District or County Councils on matters such as planning applications and highway maintenance. Contact with the Council can be made via an individual councillor or The Clerk.

The Council has five elected members and is served by the Parish Clerk. Meetings (open to the public) are held in the Village Hall on the second Wednesday of the odd-numbered months (January, March, etc.) starting at 7.30 p.m. The date and agenda of each meeting is advertised on the Notice Board by the bus shelter.

WELCOME TO CHARNEY BASSETT

The village of Charney Bassett lies in open country beside the meandering river Ock. It is situated in the north of the Vale of White Horse, in Gainfield Hundred, and there has been a settlement here since Anglo-Saxon times. The earliest surviving record shows there was a grant of lands to the Abbot of Abingdon Abbey in 811 AD. The land originally was largely marsh and the meaning of 'Charney' is Cearn-isle or island beside the river Cearn

To the north of the village is Cherbury camp, an Iron Age fortification, the meaning of the name being the barrow beside the river Cherne, or Cearn.

St. Peter's Church has some sections as old as the 12th century - an interesting history is available in the church. The church is normally open during the day and at service times, which vary throughout the month. For access at other times, contact the churchwardens. Full details can be found in the Cherbury News, which is published monthly and also carries news of the Parish Council and village events.

Charney Manor was built as a grange for Abingdon Abbey when it owned extensive land around the village. It is now a Quaker house and conference centre. An illustrated brochure is available.

Opposite the Manor and Church is the Water Mill now owned by Charney Bassett Parish Council and undergoing restoration by volunteers. The Mill is open for visitors on a number of occasions throughout the year.

At the last census in 2001, the population of the village was 271 in 116 dwellings.

E-mail: fc.rothwell@tiscali.co.uk.

Charney Bassett Village College

The College was set up in January 2001 by the Parish Council. Its objectives are:-

- to provide facilities in Charney Bassett to assist villagers to learn new skills.
- to act as a channel through which CLET funds can be used to benefit villagers.
- to improve the viability of the Village Hall by putting it to greater use.

For information on current College activities, contact the College Manager, Jos Bath, Tel: 868260 or E-mail villagecollege@aol.com.
